Usuário não é burro Você que é preguiçoso

De nada adianta um software lindo se o código está ruim

A interface dá vida ao código

Contact chips

Contact information that users have for people may be represented in a compact way using contact chips. The chips are invoked and inserted into a text field (usually the "To" field) when the user starts typing a contact's name, sees the contact's addresses, and selects the correct one. Contact chips can be added directly to a text field from a menu of contacts.

Contact chips efficiently confirm that the user will be sending their message to the correct person.
